“Daily, we hear of the challenges Californians face to become homeowners. And, for those with low household incomes, it just seems impossible,” said Theresa Parker, CalHFA’s Executive Director. “Together with Habitat for Humanity affiliates, we are able help make homeownership a reality by financially assisting our Habitat partners and freeing up the mortgage dollars they need to create new affordable homes now.”

Including the initial round of funding in fiscal year 2005/2006, CalHFA’s Habitat for Humanity Loan Purchase Program has, in total, committed to purchase 73 mortgage loans representing over $5.75 million from 9 local California Habitat for Humanity affiliates. The influx of capital to these California Habitat affiliates provides immediate access to funds they normally would collect over the life of the mortgages, increasing their current building production capacity.

Habitat for Humanity International is a nonprofit organization that builds affordable housing in partnership with families in need of a simple, decent place to live. Habitat partner families work with volunteers to construct their homes, providing what Habitat calls “sweat equity.” Habitat then sells the house to the partner family at cost with a zero-interest mortgage. Typical mortgages run from seven to 30 years.

Created in 1975 as the state’s affordable housing bank, the California Housing Finance Agency has invested over $14 billion in non-taxpayer funds to help more than 140,000 California families live in a home of their own with a mortgage they can afford.
